NCL bags SKOCH-Order of Merit Award for Risk Management

Northern Coalfields Limited (NCL) has bagged the prestigious SKOCH-Order of Merit Award. The company received this award for the best work in Corporate Excellence Projects related to Risk Management in the country. Senior Manager (mining) Shri. S.T. Patil received this honor on behalf of NCL at the valedictory session of the two-day 53rd Scotch Summit held in New Delhi on Tuesday and Wednesday. Shri Nitin Gadkari, Minister of Road, Transport, and Highways of India, inaugurated the summit at New Delhi's Constitutional Club on Tuesday as chief guest.

NCL CMD Shri. P.K. Sinha and functional directors of the company have congratulated the team NCL for this achievement and have conveyed their best wishes for future endeavors.

For fetching this prestigious award, the work in the field of risk management being done by NCL was presented by corporate planning department of NCL to the jury through a presentation. Going through the stringent and rigorous qualifying benchmarks and fierce competition, the company finally made it to this prestigious honor.

Of late, NCL has been receiving appreciations for its outstanding works in different fields. 'Excellence in performance award' for safety management, 'Best Green Business Leader of the year' award for outstanding works in the field of environmental protection, 'Apex India CSR Excellence Award' for excellent works in the field of CSR are some of the esteemed accolades received by the company in recent times. NCL CMD Shri P.K. Sinha has also been honored with 'ICC PSE Excellence Award' recently for his noteworthy contribution in the economic development of the nation serving through the coal industry.
